

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An insulating film is formed of a carbon-containing silicon dioxide film on a semiconductor substrate. In the insulating film, an interconnect groove is formed. A silicon dioxide layer with a density high enough to allow almost no oxygen to pass therethrough is formed on the bottom and side faces of the interconnect groove. And a metal interconnect is formed on the silicon dioxide layer inside the interconnect groove.